EverQuest and EverQuest II expansions released

Enad Global 7 today announces that Daybreak Games has launched new content expansions for EverQuest and EverQuest II from its development studio Darkpaw Games. Both expansions give players of the pioneering online role-playing games new level caps, questlines, and zones to explore.

EverQuest's latest expansion, Shattering of Ro, centers around a murder and accusations that the player characters may be behind the crime. Players will have to explore six new expansion zones to clear their names, uncovering the powerful forces behind this conspiracy. The expansion includes 49 new quests, four new missions, nine new raids, and a new race and class combination: Vah Shir Druid.

EverQuest II's latest expansion, Rage of Cthurath, plunges adventurers into a nightmarish realm where survival is unlikely, and hope is all but gone. A raised level cap and myriad new questlines will help players hone their skills, but be warned: Simply maintaining one's sanity within The Void is a triumph that few will achieve.
