

Interview with the CEO of Prostatype Genomics

Nyemissioner.se has conducted an interview with Fredrik Rickman, CEO of Prostatype Genomics. In the article, published on the Nyemissioner.se news page, Fredrik Rickman discusses new long-term data demonstrating significant added value for the company's genetic test, Prostatype®, compared to the NCCN's established risk classification system. He also addresses the status of the company's ongoing process with Medicare regarding reimbursement in the US; a working meeting with Medicare is scheduled for early November.

The company will update the market when further relevant information regarding the process becomes available.
