SdipTech acquires A.U.T. (Wheels and Castors) and expands its intra-hub logistic solutions.

SdipTech AB (publ) has acquired the UK company A.U.T. (Wheels and Castors) Co. Ltd, a specialist provider of wheels and castors. The company generates annual revenues of approximately GBP 7 million with good profitability. The acquisition strengthens SdipTech's offering within Supply Chain & Transportation.

A.U.T has established a leading position in the UK market for wheels and castors, serving a broad range of sectors including logistics, industrial, waste recycling and specialist engineering. The company sources and designs specialist wheels and castor solutions to meet the performance critical requirements of its customers, contributing significantly to the efficiency and safety of their operations.

"A.U.T's focus on industrial and commercial segments complements our position within intra-hub logistic solutions. Its technical design led solutions are key to meeting demanding industry requirements, reflected in the long-standing customer relationships", says Daniel Unge, Head of business area Supply Chain & Transportation at SdipTech.

James Glover, Strategic Director, and Peter Harrop, CFO, will remain in their respective part-time roles alongside Managing Director Guy Glover, ensuring strong continuity going forward.

"Having firmly established A.U.T's strong market position, our integration with SdipTech will deliver new opportunities to further strengthen this and continue growth. We see significant value in their resources and strategic support."

A.U.T. becomes the eleventh business unit within Supply Chain & Transportation and is included in the business area from August 2026.
